

keep browsing

Marriage- When will men learn?
9 responses

Affordable windmill for your home
35 responses

Evidence may suggest US government...
30 responses

One woman may hold key to defeating...
28 responses

Top CIA official: '9/11-Iraq...
46 responses

Anger over girls' strip...

An embargo on Iran???

The price of speaking out
2 responses

If we know enough we'll never...

Too young? Preteen girls get bikini...
34 responses

ScootStars Scoot Across America -...

Minority ethnic groups used in...

Distant Dads: What it's like...
4 responses

Marriage- When will men learn?

added august 16, 2008

9 responses

<http://familycourtmafia.blogspot.com/2...>

With 3 out of 4 marriages ending in divorce and 83 percent of custody cases going to females, it is no wonder that there is a lack of willingness and feeling of despair amongst men when it comes to participating in raising their children. Most men report that they are met with fierce resistance and obstacles by not only the mother but also that of the court system that generally has little compassion or willingness to assist in their desires and wishes to remain a force in the lives of their children. With the system being so tipped in favor of the mother, most men lose the desire to fight a battle that has been proven time and time again to be a useless and costly fight. What is even more disturbing is the willingness of family court judges to not only allow fathers to be restricted from the lives of their own children but it consistently ignores and dismisses false allegations, improper conduct, visitation denials, violations of court orders, and false police reports and arrests that are routine acts committed. by a mother when the father does in fact fight for his parental rights.

This brings us to the question of why are men still getting married and having children? With all the odds, statistics, and past cases showing that at any point he runs the risk of not only losing everything that he has worked for up until that point but he is almost assured that his ability to survive post divorce is slim to none. When a man runs not only the risk of losing his current finances, his ability to parent his children and then the ability to financially support himself it is no wonder that more and more men are turning to surrogate mothers to bear their children or just not getting married in the first place. Even with a surrogate mother, a man has to be real careful that he not only is not given the child he was promised but there is a good chance he will be financially responsible for a child he rarely gets to see.

More in the link.....

regjoeschmo
8 hours ago

flag

9 responses // Marriage- When will men learn?

The system should be geared in favour of the children and their welfare, first and foremost. There are also those dads who abandon wife and children and never pay a cent for their upkeep nor desire to see them.

Vierotchka
8 hours ago

reply | flag

Why are people so surprised that having sex makes babies?
There are too many people already. Stop!

asherp
8 hours ago

reply | flag

response to this

If Obama has his way, it will be cheaper to just shack up for tax purposes anyway.

JohnA
6 hours ago

reply | flag

regjoeschmo
added this

related topics

Politics (19040)

WTF (9723)

Children (911)

Law (900)

Activism (639)

Corruption (328)

Child Abuse (112)

Parental Rights (50)

